BÉATRICE COINTREAU

ADMIRABLE FAMILY VINEYARDS IN MALIBU

Béatrice Cointreau, CEO of ADMIRABLE Family Vineyards, author and mother of three sons, divides her time between California and France. "J'ai deux amours, Malibu et Paris," she says.

"Enjoy and celebrate every sip of life without moderation, as life is a blessing!"

The successful head of the renowned Malibu-based family vineyards, Béatrice Cointreau holds numerous diplomas, including a Master's in law and an MBA from Cornell University. She developed her expertise in wine and spirits as manager of multiple companies, and spent 30 years as CEO and marketing director of several champagne and cognac houses, and as board member of international banks and corporations. Proud to be an entrepreneur, she joined the International French Advisors in 2015. In addition, Béatrice Cointreau has been honored by the French government, receiving both official titles—"Merite Agricole," for her input in the agricultural industry, and the highest recognition, "Legion of Honor" for her civilian activities.

A cancer survivor, Béatrice Cointreau is the author of five positive, inspiring books published on both sides of the Atlantic, including Organic Wine: A Marketer's Guide (2015), Proud to be Californian and Malibu is Admirable (2016).
